

Umbarger liquor vote to be sought

Petition calling for a local option election in the Umbarger area will be circulated after March 1, it was learned last week.

Siegfried Bolte of Umbarger said he will circulate the petition.

A local option election for the Umbarger precinct—justice precinct 3 or voting precinct 4—could be held as soon as the first week in April.

Fifteen months ago, an attempt to call a local option election in the Umbarger precinct was blocked on a legal technicality before county commissioners had the opportunity to call the election.

Bolte, who circulated the petitions 15 months ago, said he wants the voters in the precinct to have the opportunity to express their wishes on whether to legalize sale of alcoholic beverages.

He said he will file an application to obtain petitions after the end of February.

The state attorney general ruled about 15 months ago that because county commissioners had redistricted the justice precinct 3, voters in that precinct must wait 15 months before they could present petitions to call for a local option election.

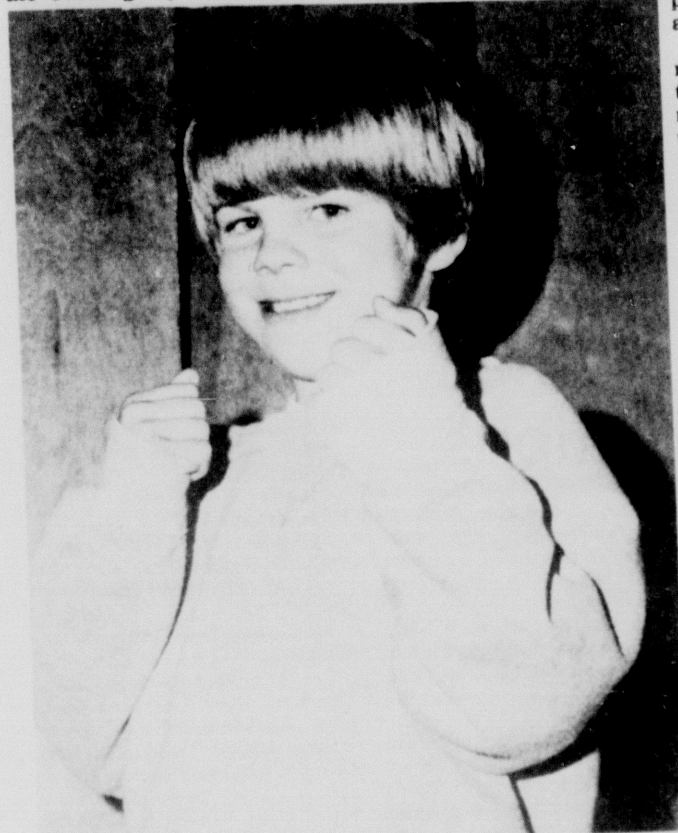

The petitions can be brought to county commissioners only on the second Monday of each month for consideration.

Bolte needs only collect 35 signatures on his petition to call the election. The number is based on the number of votes cast for the governor in the last general-presidential election.

Justice precinct 3 now has 185 registered voters. In the governor's race in November, 139 persons cast ballots.

Once the petition is presented county commissioners, they may call the election for a date not less than 20 nor more than 30 days after the petitions are presented.

County Clerk LeRoy Hutson said he currently sees no legal problems which the Umbarger petitioners might encounter this time.

Shane Gray, a young tough in the Canyon Boxing Club, strikes a menacing pose. Gray talked about fighting with The News last week and said he thinks it's fun.

A clout on the snout, but boxing is still fun

What's it like for an eight-year-old boy to be required to jog about a mile a day, get lots of sleep, eat good food and abstain from such goodies as soft drinks, candy and bubble gum?

For young Shane Gray, son of Mrs. Gayle Gray of 907 24th St., "It's fun!"

Shane is a member of the recently formed Canyon Boxing Club. In his first bout last weekend in Canyon, the Rex Reeves second grader went up against a more experienced boxer "named David" and lost. He is scheduled to make his second ring appearance next weekend in Amarillo.

When asked what he thought about the sport of padded fists, Shane replied, "I don't know. I kind of like it when you get into the ring."

He also said he liked "doing pushups" while getting into shape for the sport.

According to the young fighter's mother, Shane and the "boy named David" visited prior to his first fight. "They thought the fight between them would be a tie," said Mrs. Gray.

Shane said he was having no problems since taking up boxing. "It's fun," he said.

The youngster said the boxing program would help him "learn boxing." He added that when he gets into the ring he wants to knock his opponent down. Last weekend, "He (his opponent) hit me in the snout and I fell," Shane said.

When asked about his future plans regarding the boxing program, Shane replied, "Yeah... I guess stay with it."

He admitted that he would feel better when he wins his first fight. "I get scared at first but not at the last," he said of his feelings just before getting into the ring.

The youth, one of the youngest boxers in the club, said the fighters were required to wear a mouthpiece and that they couldn't box without it.

The club also includes one other second grader and since their first fights, one first grader had joined.

Shane's brother, nine-year-old Bret, passed up boxing to take part in the Canyon Kids Inc. basketball program. Shane was too young for basketball but seems to have found an adequate replacement.

When the Canyon team members become more experienced and begin to go up against fighters of equal experience, Shane will undoubtedly get to find out what it's like to "knock him down" and record that first victory.

HS girls in playoffs for district crown

The Canyon girl Eagles, defending AAA State Champions, turned the tables on Muleshoe Friday night, 67-40, and kept in contention for district honors by forcing a playoff game with the girl Mules.

The playoff game, played in Friona Saturday night, was needed to determine the district champion because Muleshoe and Canyon split their pair of regular season district games. The results and details of that game will appear in The News on Thursday.

Of the Friday night win over Muleshoe, coach Bob Schneider said Saturday morning, "We had to win it... the kids did it. They came through when they had to and I hope we can do it again tonight."

Canyon led the first quarter with a 16-13 score and by the end of the half had built up a lead of 38-24. The score at the end of the third period stood at 56-32 and the girl Eagles were not threatened from that point on.

Kim Killingsworth racked up 30 points and Sheryl Gunter came through with 18 in the decisive win. Alisha Nelson counted for 11 points and Carla Swartzell contributed 8.

Canyon hit 29 of 52 shots from the field for a percentage of 56, and hit 9 of 16 free throws for 55 per cent.

Coach Schneider said the team experienced 20 turnovers which he considered too many for competition.

State board chops WT budget request by over $1 million

West Texas State University could end up with an appropriation for the school year beginning next fall that totals more than $1 million less than requested.

The News obtained a copy of the Legislative Budget Board recommendations for WTSU's budget. The board's recommended total for expenditures by the university is $15.5 million less than the $8.77 million requested for the 1974 year.

The cuts are across-the-board, including the faculty salary budget and all other funding.

The News learned that WTSU had requested a total budget of $8,776,505 for 1974. The budget board recommended funding at $7,212,387.

The budget recommendation is subject to approval first by the House appropriations committee and then the Legislature.

The university had requested $4,065,587 for faculty salaries for 1974. The budget board has recommended $3,677,966 for faculty salaries.

Total requested budget for resident instruction was chopped in the budget board recommendation from $5,020,588 to $4, 457,465.

The requested 1975 budget is almost $2 million more than the legislative budget board recommendation. WTSU's request for that school year totals $9,066,964. The budget board recommendation is $7,385,551.

To meet the WTSU budget, the state is expected to appropriate out of general revenue funds a total of $4,873,374. A total of $1.25 million will be used by the state out of its share of federal revenue sharing money to reach the $7,212,387 figure.

Virgil Henson, financial vice president at the university, was optimistic Thursday that even though the legislative budget board recommendation is low, the university can gain enough money to make up the difference.

He said the loss in student enrollment during the past three years has affected the formula by which the university budget is figured by the budget board.

"We're working with several committees in the legislature and we hope to get that (the budget board recommendation) adjusted," he said. "We'll probably be able to maintain our present level. At least, I'm hopeful we will."

Henson said he does not anticipate that any faculty members will be released from the payroll as the result of the budget board recommendation.

He said he expects normal attrition on the faculty and staff to make up for the loss in funding on the faculty salary schedule.

"Personally, I don't feel we have to curtail any programs," he said. "I have every reason to say we're going great guns."

Eleven faculty members were notified a year ago that their contracts would not be renewed at the end of this school year. Henson said no other faculty members have received such notification and he anticipates that none will.

Some pertinent figures follow:

Fed action delayed on U.S. 60 changes

It will be at least 1975 before any concrete action can be taken to have U.S. 60 from Amarillo to Las Cruces, N.M., redesignated an interstate highway.

That was the message Sen. Joe Montoya of New Mexico brought from Washington to Roswell, N.M., Friday night as he spoke before about 200 representatives from towns and cities along the U.S. 60 route.

Montoya, who spoke primarily on American payment for reconstruction of North Vietnam and the federal budget, said a bill has been introduced which requires a feasibility study to be run on the U.S. 60 project and presented the Congress by 1975.

He said the project is "in its infancy," but is the number 1 priority item for funding when federal highway funds are turned loose by President Nixon.

Montoya said the federal highway act was killed last session primarily due to the efforts of representatives of large and Eastern seaboard cities and states to use federal highway money for mass transportation.

He said he has no idea when the President might release federal highway funds.

Canyon representatives learned of the New Mexico movement to have U.S. 60 redesignated a part of the interstate system and brought up to interstate standards late last year.

WTSU-Tech competition to be sought in sports

A concerted effort to bring West Texas State University and Texas Tech into competition again on the football field, basketball court, cinder track, golf course and tennis court will be launched Monday, The News learned last week.

Support from the university regents, ex-students and athletic department is expected to be thrown behind the effort to schedule future competition between the Lubbock and Canyon schools.

The support is an apparent outgrowth of comments made by Kent Hance, a Lubbock attorney who was named a regent for WTSU several weeks ago.

Hance told The News at that time he was placing a personal priority on seeing WTSU and Tech compete in athletics.

The West Texas Ex-Students Association, Inc., has discussed for some time the possibility of calling on Tech and WTSU to renew sports rivalry.

WTSU Athletic Director Gene Mayfield is expected to participate Monday in the announcement of the effort.

Chambers of Commerce in Canyon and Amarillo are also expected to voice support of the idea.

One source on the WTSU campus said from a monetary viewpoint both WTSU and Tech would benefit greatly from a renewed rivalry. He noted that even though football games would probably have to be scheduled in Lubbock because Tech's stadium has a larger capacity than does WTSU's, both schools would make money on such a venture.

State Rep. Ben Bynum said Saturday he has paid a $1200 judgment against him filed by an Austin printing company recently.

Bynum said he paid the judgment Tuesday.

The judgment had been filed in January by the Whitley Co. of Austin and abstracts of the judgment were filed in Randall and Potter counties.

Johnny Jones, president of Whitley Co., told The News Friday the judgment had not been paid.

Feds will seek indictments on 2

The U.S. attorney in Lubbock said last week he will seek indictments Feb. 20 on West Texas State University standout basketball player Brent Lake and former player Cleotis Wayne Reece when a federal grand jury convenes in Amarillo.

U.S. Atty. Robert Wilson said charges have not been dropped against Lake and Reece, who are charged with theft of U.S. mail.

Lake, 25, and Reece, 22, surrendered to the U.S. Marshall in Amarillo in early November and are currently free from custody on $1000 personal recognizance bonds.

Charges against Lake and Reece were filed following a week-long investigation by federal authorities into the theft of two military veterans checks from the post office at the university.

The checks had been taken by breaking the glass fronts of two mail boxes. Total value of the stolen checks was almost $1000.

Lake, a senior guard from Midland, Pa., was initially suspended from the WTSU basketball team but later reinstated. He is a two-year (See LAKE, page 4)

Abundant fuel supply seen but cost high

In discussing the fuel-energy shortage problem, three geology professors at West Texas State University agreed that there is a shortage in the United States but an abundant supply throughout the world. One, in saying that only a price increase will produce future reserves, predicted that gasoline in Texas would be selling for 50 cents a gallon by July.

The News talked to Dr. Robert C. Burton, head of the WTSU geology department, and Dr. James R. Underwood, Jr., and Robert Winn, professors in the department.

In the personal opinion of Dr.

Burton, there is no real energy or fuel shortage when the entire world is considered.

"It's just not in the right places," he said, emphasizing that the statements he made were only his own thoughts and opinions and were not based on known, provable facts.

According to Dr. Burton, the shortage of crude oil in the United States is due to the fact that this country uses most of the petroleum products but does not produce the bulk of the world's supply.

He cited the tremendous amounts of oil lying under other continents which at present are not readily available to use here because of political factors and the high cost of transporting.

The geologist admitted that we do not have a great supply of "cheap oil" as we have been accustomed to in this country. He said that much of the shallow oil previously found in America's oil field has been depleted and the deeper supplies being found now are obtained at a higher cost.

Dr. Burton said, "We are going to be in the gas and oil business a long, long time." He added that, based on patterns of the past, man has always found poor dis tribution of things. "The earth provides abundantly everything that is here," he said in pointing to the need for getting the supplies to where they are used and needed most.

Talking of energy supplies, Dr. Burton said the sun and atomic energy offer undreamed of supplies. "They are virtually untapped," he said.

Of man's ability to cope with the current energy and fuel problem, Dr. Burton said, "We always surprise ourselves."

Further stating what he called "only an opinion," the professor said that as domestic supplies dwindle or become harder to find and process, prices on such items as gasoline might jump into the 80 cents to one dollar per gallon bracket. "We have found most of the easy, shallow and cheap oil in the United States," he said. "Cheap oil is a world-wide problem."

The professor said he felt that most of the potential oil fields of the world had not yet been explored and he forecast "great finds" in other parts of the world. He named Australia, Asia and Canada.

Regardless of any future sources found to provide heat and other fuel needs, said Dr. Burton, "We will always need oil as long as man uses machinery."

He said unless machinery is to be made of something other than metal, machines will always need lubrication.

With the sun and atomic factor possible energy supplies of the future, and with an apparently ample worldwide oil supply, the primary problem of the Northern and Western Hemispheres is one of getting fuel from the other areas of the world at an affordable price, said the geology professor.

Dr. Burton said many persons in the field of geology, or in the oil industry, would probably agree with his opinions. "And you would probably find just as many who do not. Only a magician could know exactly," he said.

Dr. Underwood and Winn, also had interesting comments on the fuel-energy shortage problem and both offered some ways and means to improve or possibly solve the situation.

Dr. Underwood taught in the national universities of Libya for two years and in similar institutions in Iraq three years.

Professor Winn was in Algeria in 1970-71 serving as a research scientist-hydrologist, and for six months of that time worked at a national oil concern.

Both professors agreed with Dr. Burton that, when the world is considered, there is a vast amount of fuel and energy supplies. Both also cited problems involved in getting the supplies to points where they were needed, and in taking advantage of yet untapped sources.

Of fossil fuel supplies, Dr. Underwood said there was no near depletion of coal but he added that oil and gas supplies

Our World

Folly Of Biting Hand

By ANN BROWN

More than 2,500 years ago Aesop warned of the folly of biting the hand that feeds you. Apparently, even the sage ex-slave never thought any man would be foolish enough to feed the hand that bites him.

Paul Harvey, in a recent column, decried the popular opinion that the taxpayers have been subsidizing the farmers. Actually, said Harvey, the farmers have "been subsidizing the rest of us for the last 25 years."

How else can an economy be explained wherein the farmer is forced to sell his produce for less than the cost of production?

Farmers never had a choice about accepting checks from Washington—if they wanted to keep farming. And with their life savings tied up in land and machinery, and untrained for other occupations, just how wide was the choice?

The government recently announced that the farm payments would be cut in half (about $2.5 billion). Probably only one thing would make farmers happier than getting the federal government off their farms: a price for their crops that would give them returns on their investments consistent with their city neighbors' incomes. Only a few weeks after the $2.5 billion was slashed from the farm program, the President announced $2.5 billion would be given to North Vietnam.

However much the unlightened may resent his tax dollars going to the farms, he must admit farmers have kept him well fed and clothed.

According to Michael J. O'Connor, executive director of the Supermarket Institute, U.S. Department of Agriculture reports "the American housewife in 1971 spent 12.5 percent of the family's after-tax income on food consumed in the home. This is the lowest figure ever reported in our country, or in any other country in the world."

For comparison, O'Connor cited figures supplied by the Department of Commerce: "British housewives spend 22 percent of their after-tax dollars on food. The French spend 23 percent. The Japanese spend over 28 percent."

"In Russia, the figures are still between 40 and 50 percent... and the poorer nations of the world, the quest for food consumes nearly all of the family's efforts and finance."

It is the modern farmer who has enabled Americans to enjoy the highest standard of living on record. The money they have saved on food has been available for fine homes, frills, and fun.

An irrigation canal is of no value until it is full. It is the overflow that furnishes the life-giving water. How can farmers continue to feed the nation when their own larder is empty?

The verdict in the legal controversy between a local family and an area bank may be of interest to the litigants only. But the issue involved should concern every American.

Because farmers reach the end of their row of mortgages one at a time, the public is not aware it is epidemic.

According to government reports, American farmers have operated at a loss for the last 7 years. How many corporations or individuals could survive that?

Do famishing farmers or any other overburdened taxpayers have any reason for wanting their tax dollars to go to Hanoi?

The antiwar agitators talk of "reparations" for North Vietnam. They do not mention the aggressors in this conflict, nor do they suggest reparations for the more than 3,000 civilians slaughtered at Hue or whole villages massacred by the Viet Cong—to say nothing of 50,000 American boys sacrificed to try to stop the northern invaders.

Who can conceive the anguish of the POW, MIA, and gold star families who are forced to contribute to that $2.5 billion for North Vietnam? And how will the families of the men killed since the "cease fire" feel about supporting the killers?

But if President Nixon is determined to give Hanoi another pound of American flesh, why take it off the farmers, the five percent who are still struggling to feed the other 95?

By Carroll Wilson

I really don't know enough about computers and computer business to be able to make much out of the specifications submitted for bids for the tax office computerization.

A couple of things did strike me in looking them over, however. As you'll remember from our continuing story on the county commissioner court railroad of the use of West Texas State University's computer center to handle the tax office business, Commissioners Bill Butler and John Fulgenzi told Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector, and Durwood Henderson, head of the WT computer center, to write the specifications for bids so that WTSU would be certain of getting the low bid.

I kind of thought they were joking in their suggestion. Apparently, they weren't.

Item #1 under the specification list says the following: "Contracting center to be ready to receive tax data from a terminal located in the Tax Office on real property, personal property and automobiles by February 1, 1973..."

That item pretty well clinches the fact that WTSU will do the computer service, since bids won't even be opened until way after Feb. 1.

The specifications are lengthy, but I'm going to examine WTSU's bid with a fine tooth comb to ensure that they meet all the specifications.

I still don't care much for the way the tax office computerization was handled.

While on the subject of the tax office, there's another pertinent point which needs to be mentioned.

Mrs. Bruse has several times during the past six months been questioned about the number of employees she has in her office. She evades the issue by stating always that she has only between 12 and 15 full-time employees.

What Mrs. Bruse has been hard to pin down on is how many part-time and full-time employees she has on the payroll.

Figures from the auditor's office indicate that in 1972, she had an average of about 14 full-time employees throughout the year, and an average of about 10 part-time employees throughout the year.

Mrs. Bruse says she needs her part-time employees during her peak months, but the figures show she has part-time people on the payroll year-round.

Following is the breakdown by month.

Full-time	Part-time
Jan. 15	8
Feb. 15	12
March 15	11
April 15	12
May 15	7
June 15	7
July 13	6
Aug. 13	10
Sept. 12	9
Oct. 11	13
Nov. 12	12
Dec. 14	11

The point is this: Since Mrs. Bruse is always going to have at least a half-dozen part-time employees, why doesn't she hire about three more full-time employees and let all her part-timers go?

The savings to the county if she followed such a system are obvious. The county auditor and county treasurer would not have to mess with figuring all those extra part-time checks every month. Mrs. Bruse's full-time staff would not have to constantly train part-timers. Full-time workers are not constantly starting and stopping.

To see how much Mrs. Bruse's personnel are costing each month, the following figures were obtained on salaries:

Jan. —$7371	July —$7233
Feb. —$8680	Aug. —$7173
Mar. —$8882	Sept. —$7000
Apr. —$9037	Oct. —$7620
May —$7798	Nov. —$7561
Jun. —$7639	Dec. —$7358

The Amarillo newspaper had a somewhat misleading story in their Friday morning edition. The story concerns the Legislative Budget Board recommendations for West Texas State University.

The reporter put his lead on the fact that WTSU was to receive $1.25 million in federal revenue sharing funds. By the way this was stated, several faculty members told me they were confused about the real picture in next year's budget.

WTSU is scheduled to receive $1.25 million in federal revenue sharing funds. This amount is not, however, over and above the Legislative Budget Board recommendation of $7.2 million. It is simply another source of revenue for the state to reach that $7.2 million figure.

Interesting sidenote on Ben Bynum: Dallas Morning News reported recently Bynum overspent his legislative budget by $2000 during the last session.

Thank you.

Sifting With Sands

Canyon Reporter Should Be Boxed . . .

Have any idea what the speed limit is on the Canyon Expressway service road? Neither did I until I asked the highway patrol after I began using the two-way lanes while the freeway was undergoing repair. The speed limit is 70 miles-per-hour, the same as the freeway limit.

But, before calling to find out, I noted that there are more than 300 highway signs between Bell Street in South Amarillo and the traffic circle on the north edge of Canyon. They tell the driver how, when and where to drive, turn, exit, enter and a bit of everything else . . . but not one posts the service road speed limit.

There are some things about being a reporter that make life interesting, and one of those things is writing headlines. Can't you just imagine the play on words that is possible with towns like Happy, Loco, Turkey, Clearwater, etc.

Here are just some fictitious possibilities:

"Happy (Tex.) Man Goes Wild, Shoots Up Town"

"Waterproof (La.) Resident Drowns"

"Driver (Ark.) Driver Charged in Crash"

"Loco (Tex.) Man Sees Flying Saucer"

"Turkey (Wyo.) Collector Named in Lawsuit"

"Levelland (Tex.) Going Downhill, Candidate Claims"

"Turkey (Tex.) Observes Thanksgiving"

"Backgate (Ark.) Slams Door To Bond Issue"

"Clearview (Tex.) Choking With Smog"

"Rifle (Colo.) Sets Sights On Tourist Trade"

"Hardy (Ark.) Man Drops From Exhaustion"

"Clearwater (Tex.) Has Pollution Problem"

"Gillett (Ark.) Man Has Close Shave"

"Muleshoe (Tex.) Claims Being Walked On"

I really missed my chance last Thursday when I couldn't convince strait-laced editor Carroll Wilson that the headline on the Grand Champion Barrow story should have been, "Canyon F.F.A. Goes Whole-Hog" At Fort Worth Stock Show."

Variety Ring Has Luncheon

The Variety Ring Club met for a luncheon Friday, Feb. 2, in the home of Mrs. Earl Burtz, south of Canyon.

Mrs. John Jennings conducted the business session in the absence of the president, Mrs. Ann Weaver. Roll call was answered with "what I remember about the groundhog." A social hour was filled with handicrafts, readings, and a special reading by Mrs. A.K. Goodman, a special guest. Members exchanged secret pal gifts and circulated the guessing box.

Those attending were Mmes. Modena Barker, Alice Black, Lydia Mataler, Mae Johnson, Eula Bee Harding, John Jennings, Ben Priddy, Janey B. Hines, Jeannette Robbins, Laura Hartman, Jettrew Winters, Roxie Hammons, Reeta Tucker, and guests, Mrs. Goodman and Mrs. Rae Walters.

The next meeting will be on Friday, Feb. 16, in the home of Mrs. Reeta Tucker.

Accent On The Arts by Mary Alice Hines

ACCENT ON THE ARTS
By Mary Alice Hines

Wednesday evening I attended the concert of chamber music presented by the Berkshire Chamber Players at the high school auditorium.

The high-calibre music was presented by Herbert Tichman, clarinet and flute; his wife, Ruth, piano; Richard Locker, cello; and Elmar Oliveira, violin.

Tichman told me they began the tour in Pennsylvania in January and will conclude it the end of this month in British Columbia. All of the players are from New York City. A reception followed the program in the home of Dr. Gerald E. Schultz.

Congratulations to Julie Brantley, Gary Cox and Chip Van Pelt who took top honors at the regional Scholastic Art Awards show in Amarillo last week. The works of the CHS students will be entered in national competition later this year in New York City.

Julie was nominated for national entry in the 1972 Hallmark Honor prize for her mixed media work, Gary, Chip, and Julie will represent the region with the portfolio entries.

The Branding Iron Theatre is being prepared for "Mary of Scotland" by Maxwell Anderson.

PROFILE—WILLIAM A. MOORE

Talent is not a rare commodity. For every successful person in any field—there are maybe a thousand people with the potential to fill that very same position. So I will not dwell on the obvious talent of William A. Moore. Anyone who has seen him either on the stage or behind the stage can attest to the man's gift for the theatre. What makes him unique? Allow me to list: patience, understanding, drive, self-sacrifice, persistence, concern, vitality, love, physical stamina, confidence and Margaret Moore. William and Margaret Moore are a team in every sense of the word. Their separate and combined abilities create a very positive force. The couple have a son, "Wam," who is now a graduate student at the Univ. of Texas.

Moore had quite an illustrious career as a stage actor. He toured England, Scotland and Wales, and studied with Lady Constance Benson. But he relinquished his stage career, to accept the challenge of building a theatre department at West Texas State Teachers College. He came to Canyon in 1948 at the invitation of Dr. C. Tolliver and Dr. J. A. Hill.

Moore received his first diploma at Shawnee High School in Oklahoma, followed by a B.A. from Oklahoma Baptist Univ. and a M.A. from Colorado State Univ. He has done extensive graduate work at the Univ. of Colo., Yale, Columbia, Northwestern and Univ. of Michigan. He also served four years in the Air Force, entering as a private and emerging as a captain.

Although very proud of his accomplishments with the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation and his involvement as director, with his wife, of "Texas," Moore feels his most vital accomplishment is the building of the fine theatre program at W.T. When the Moores came to this college the theatre dept. was nil and now it has blossomed into one of the finest in the state. The Branding Iron Theatre was a project of love for the Moores.

While talking to the students in the theatre program and adults contributing their time and energy to the productions, I could only find warmth, respect and love for William Moore. I believe if he asked any of them to jump off a cliff, they would only pause to ask the correct theatrical procedure for the leap. Moore pours his energy and enthusiasm into people with whom he is in contact.

In conclusion, may I just say thank-you, Mr. Moore, for coming to us. If you feel you have to return to complete your doctorate, please don't stay too long. We need you.

Whitley printed for Bynum about two years ago, according to Jones, who said he tried for two years to collect the bill.

"The printing done by Whitley was an unsatisfactory job," Bynum said Saturday. "And, on top of that it was about one and a half months late."

He said he refused to pay the bill in full.

Bynum said he and the company's attorney reached an agreement on the bill last week and he paid the amount.

Abstracts of judgement remained in force in Travis, Potter and Randall Counties Friday.

fort. In ratings for guards, Cindy Bullock led the way with a plus-12 while Judy McBroom and Carla Ratliff each posted a plus-8. Lynn Davis and Susan Hull each were rated at a plus-2 by the coach.

In the rebound department, Killingsworth picked off six at forward while Ratliff snared five at the guard position. Bullock and Nelson each pulled in three rebounds for Canyon.

According to Schneider, the victory was due to a good team effort. "That's the way it had to be," he said.

In the first game played at Muleshoe on Jan. 19, Canyon was defeated 58-47 despite holding a 26-26 tie at halftime.

Following that game, coach Schneider stated that he expected his team to have more experience by the time the second game was to be played. He also said at the time that getting to play the second game on the home court would also help.

The Canyon sextet prior to the playoff game boasted a season record of 27-5, and Muleshoe showed a season score of 21 wins and six losses.

The girl Eagles have won the state title two times out of the past four years and have been crowned district champions in each of the last five seasons. They won district titles in 1968, 1969, 1970, 1971 and 1972, with state crowns coming in 1969 and 1972.

At the beginning of the season Schneider said in an interview that the squad was extremely short on experience, having no starters returning from the previous year. The team also lacks height.

Schneider said earlier in the season that he was counting on his charges picking up enough experience during the early part of the season to put them into contention with Muleshoe.

Following the loss to their only district rivals in January, the coach said he hoped they learned something from the defeat.

competition between Tech and WTSU was discontinued several years ago due to a clash in personalities and due to Tech's acceptance in the Southwest Conference.

With a new football coach and athletic director and WTSU's entrance in the Missouri Valley Conference, those roadblocks would seem to be gone, he said.

The effort to be launched Monday is expected to call for renewed competition in football, basketball, indoor and outdoor track, tennis and golf.

West Texas and Tech ceased playing each other in football after a 1964 game. They ceased competition on the basketball court after a game in 1959.

The two universities began competing against each other in 1925 in both football and basketball.

In football, the two schools played each other every year from 1925 to 1964 except for a nine-year break in the 1930's.

Tech amassed 29 victories and West Texas amassed seven wins in those 27 years of competition.

On the basketball court, the story has been different. West Texas won 51 of 75 basketball outings against Tech.

Friday night by downing Nazareth 51-40, giving them a 10-10 season record and standing third in the district with six wins and four losses.

Against Nazareth, the Cowboys led after a close first quarter by a score of 7-6. They broke it open in the second period and led at halftime 25-11, holding on to the lead for the remainder of the game.

Scoring was led by Johnny Payne who accounted for 16 points but Greg Looney was close on his heels with 15. Gary Barrett netted 10, Chris Pearson 4, and Brent Morrison 2.

were running short.

Winn commented that we haven't found a way to make solar power practical at the present time, and that use of such fuels as feedlot waste will not be as practical in commercial use as has been experienced in the laboratory.

"The whole problem gets back to economics," said Winn.

According to Underwood and Winn, oil companies need to be given greater incentives to search for oil and gas supplies. They cited low government controlled prices of gas in interstate transportation for causing oil companies to lose interest in exploration.

"An oil company is like everything else... they make a profit or they can't stay in business," said Winn. "They can't afford to drill or even hunt for it."

According to the professors, companies must drill about ten wells to discover one profitable one... and as many as 45 wells in order to find a well capable of producing for a five-year period.

Dr. Underwood said the United States has only six percent of the world's population but is using 35 percent of the world's fuel consumption and more than 50 percent of the world's total resources.

According to Winn, nuclear power is now accounting for only about one percent of our energy needs, and he added that solar power, still in the experimental stage, is not being used to best advantage.

It could be, said Winn, "If office and school buildings were built to take advantage of the sun." This could be done with regard to window location and better insulation, he said.

In addition to giving the oil companies more incentive to explore and drill, the professors suggested several ways in which fuel and energy supplies might be conserved.

According to Dr. Underwood, he has read recently that if everyone would not drive their cars on trips of less than three miles, the use of gasoline would be cut by 50 percent.

Turning the thermostat down to 60 degrees in homes and wearing sweaters would save up to 30 percent in natural gas use, they said.

Simple measures like turning off electric lights when not in use, and by being conservative with water will also help solve the energy-fuel problem.

According to the geologists, a drastic increase in price is the surest way to solve the fuel problem, and Winn predicted and Stuart, were still out of action due to injuries received in a motorcycle crash last weekend, and Tommy Tipps was out with illness.

Coach Gerold Weeks said his team had benefited during the past three games from use of a full court press. He said having three players out of action Friday night made the task more difficult.

The 5-B District Tournament will be played at Happy beginning Thursday and running through Saturday. The Cowboys will meet Lazbuddie in first round action Thursday.

A price increase would allow oil companies to carry out exploration, possibly creating a "boom to geology," said Dr. Underwood.

Underwood elaborated by saying that he looks "for a massive search" once oil companies are profitably spurred into exploration for new reserves. "It should give jobs to our graduates... we have a role to play in keeping our country solvent," he added.

Said Winn, "It should help all our allied sciences."

Of the entire fuel-energy situation, the professors likened it to that of population and land. They pointed out that the world, as a whole, has no population problem. There are just some places where there are too many people and other places where there are few people.

Wanda Maria DeAguiar Paiva, Lion's International Exchange Student from Belo Horizonte, Brazil, was introduced at the Wednesday luncheon by President John Boone. She is staying with the A.J. Luquette family while in Canyon.

New Scout Troop Coming To Canyon

A new Boy Scout Troop is being organized in Canyon under sponsorship of the Noon Lions Club. It has been designated as Troop 132.

Cary Magness, scoutmaster, said the group was organized out of a Webelos Den from Pack 31 of the Cub Scouts in Canyon. Because of the members just graduating from Cub Scouting, all will be Tenderfeet until they advance through the ranks.

Because of not having experienced leaders among the new members, the troop will not hold a drive for new members until the coming fall, said Magness. "This will give us time to get organized and develop leaders from within the ranks."

After beginning a membership drive in the fall, the scoutmaster said he expected troop enrollment to double.

The troop, which held its second meeting Saturday at Camp Don Harrington, will meet during the summer on Saturday

Life In Brazil, U.S. Not Much Different

The A. J. Luquette family, 404 Thompson Lane, is playing host for three weeks to a Lion's International exchange student from Brazil, 22-year-old Wanda Maria DeAguiar Paiva.

Wanda Maria, who has just completed high school in her home town of Belo Horizonte, has followed a busy schedule since leaving there Dec. 21 en route to Miami. From that point she flew to Chicago where another host family met her and drove to their home in Wanatah, Ind. After staying a month, she came on to Amarillo by air. Since Jan. 20 she has spent a week with the Luquettes, one week with a family in Texline, and is now back with her host family here awaiting departure for Orlando, Miami and home.

Her extensive traveling in the United States has left the tall, graceful, brunette foreigner with a favorable impression of this country and its people. With little Latin accent, she says, "I like this country very much. It is very beautiful and interesting. The people here are very friendly, the same as in my country. We are a very friendly people, too, and next July I will have a Lion's exchange student as a visitor in my house."

When asked about her family at home, Wanda Maria says, "I have two mothers and two fathers." The third child in a family of six children, she has been raised in the household of a childless aunt and uncle. The household includes a grandmother and three servants — "one to cook, one to clean house, and one to stay with my grandmother who is very old," she explains. However, they maintain close contact with her mother, father, brothers and sisters living in the same city.

The young Brazilian thinks her life in South America is not much different than that of young people in this country. The high school and college set are involved weekdays in attending school half the day and either working, studying, or taking part in clubs and athletics in their free time. Weekends are varied with family occasions, such as birthday celebrations, and outings to country clubs or parks.

"Many families permit boys and girls to date alone. But in my family they are very strict and do not permit it — I must always have a cousin, aunt, or some other relative along." In line of recreation, girls play basketball, tennis and volleyball, says Wanda Maria, and boys go in for basketball, tennis and soccer, the national game.

Nearly all indulge in television viewing, which exposes them to American culture in movies. "Only in 1972 did color television come to our country," and since her area is semi-tropical, swimming is also a favorite pastime.

In March comes the gala festivity of the year — a four-day carnival that precedes Lent. "People like the Carnival so much. Everyone goes to the Club and plays all night for four nights. There is much singing, dancing, and having fun. The cities are decorated and people wear costumes. Children celebrate in the afternoon, but after you are 15, you can go to the carnival at night. It is such fun," described the exchange student with great enthusiasm.

While in Canyon, Wanda

Maria has enjoyed being a part of the Luquette's active family of seven. She has visited the Panhandle Plains Museum, attended Kids, Inc., basketball games, visited classes at WTSU, and been a guest at two of the Lion's Club Wednesday lunches.

Several treats are still in store for Wanda Maria, one of them a tour of Disneyworld at Orlando when she rejoins the large group of exchange students on Feb. 22. After sightseeing in Miami, she will return on Feb. 28 to Brazil.

Rev. Peery Heads Ministers' Group

The Rev. J. Frank Peery, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, was elected president of the Canyon Ministerial Association at its meeting Tuesday, Feb. 6, at the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Darold Baldwin, assistant pastor at the First Baptist Church and a new member, was voted in as secretary-treasurer.

The Rev. Peery replaces the Rev. Bill Foil, who completed his term of office by presiding at Tuesday's meeting.

The next meeting of the Canyon Ministerial Association will be a breakfast, Tuesday, March 27, at 7 a.m., in the cafeteria at West Texas State University. "The Right to Die" will be the subject of the discussion and dialogue among the ministers, a visiting doctor, and a visiting layman.

Future plans of the ministers' group include inviting the campus ministers at WTSU to become a part of the association and sponsoring the Easter Sunrise Service on Sunday morning, April 22 in the Amphitheater at Palo Duro Canyon.

Jan Westfall to Joe Francis has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Westfall, 508 Holman Ln. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Francis of Kress, Texas.

The marriage ceremony will take place at 6 p.m. on March 31 in the Joseph A. Hill Memorial Chapel on the campus of West Texas State University.

Canyon Study Club Lauds Sharon Brown

What makes an Outstanding Junior Club Woman? Enthusiasm? Willingness? Leadership? Spirit? Certainly all of these traits would fit the nominee from the Canyon Study Club.

Mrs. Sharon Brown, a member of the club for the past two and one-half years, has been one of the most valuable of all members during that time. The past year she has served as general chairman of fund-raising projects.

Instead of being satisfied with following past examples of handling the two large fund-raisers, Sharon started searching for some new twists and angles in making them even more successful than they had been in the past.

The first project tackled by Mrs. Brown was the Halloween Carnival. Its purpose had always been to make Halloween safe by keeping children off the streets after dark and at the same time earn money for a score of community projects. The carnival is operated in such a manner that it involves the entire community. Each civic organization is invited to set up a money-making booth. A small percentage of their profits goes to the sponsoring club, Canyon Study Club. Not only do they benefit, but the club clears more than enough to pay a $100 scholarship for a child the downtown buildings were now rented and in use. So a search was on for a place that would suit the needs. Sharon approached numerous businessmen and school personnel for their help. But all attempts to find a place were blocked, until it occurred to Sharon to call the county agent to inquire about the County Livestock Barn. This was the answer. It was large, had ample parking, and good heating facilities. Plans were made and everything was ready for the big night.

The biggest problem was yet to come. No one had predicted the biggest ice storm of the decade for that evening, but because Sharon felt that the children would be safer and warmer at the Carnival than on the streets, the carnival went on and was a big success. Parents were glad that they had such a place to bring their families.

The second project was the Miss Canyon Pageant. This was a success from the first but Mrs. Brown decided to add some new flavor by arranging for a professional master of ceremonies. Top-notch judges were obtained by Sharon. She saw to it that each of the 48 girls entered had a sponsor and that each one knew what was expected of her as a participant. All could attend the grooming sessions that Sharon had personally arranged for and made available to them. Television appearances were made by Sharon to publicize the event. As a result of her efforts, the pageant made well over $700. This money went to a $250 yearly college scholarship as well as many other grants to scholarship and educational causes.

Sharon Brown has done all of this and held down a responsible position at the same time. She is in charge of the Women's Services Department at First National Bank in Amarillo. This past November she was among one of the first women at this bank to be promoted to officer status.

This busy mother of 9-year-old twin sons, Ronnie and Stevie, is involved in many other phases of community work. Among the civic posts she has filled have been treasurer of Pack 66 Executive Committee; March of Dimes campaign director for the Golden Spread Chapter; membership chairman for Women's Division, Amarillo Chamber of Commerce; public relations chairman for Top of Texas District; and chairman for Benefit Basketball Game for the Canyon Chamber of Commerce, proceeds going for a special Christmas lighting fund for the downtown area.

The list of organizations Mrs. Brown belongs to include First Methodist Church, the Humane Society, Amarillo Law Wives, Amarillo Banker's Wives, National Association of Bank Women, Amarillo Real Estate Women's Council, and Volunteer Council for the Amarillo State Center for Human Development.

Sharon attended West Texas State University and graduated with a B.B.A. in Business Education. Her husband, Jim, is a local attorney. The Browns live at 2408 13th Ave.

An enthusiastic member of any organization, Canyon Study Club treasures her contagious spirit in their club. If a worthwhile project or idea is presented, they know Sharon Brown will step out and take the lead to see that it is initiated and carried through to its completion.

Mrs. Sharon Brown

to go to Camp Wigwam. This is a camp for mentally retarded children. Also, money goes to Girl Scouts, Little League and other youth activities from this one project.

Sharon organized committees and then went to work. There were some new problems to be faced. In the past the club had been able to use vacant buildings around the square in the downtown area for setting up the various booths. However, in the past year, the economy of Canyon had been good and all of

WTSU On Threshold Of 'A New Tomorrow'

Two West Texas State University administrators outlined some of their goals and aspirations for the university and pointed to some of the problems today and in the future at the university during an interdepartmental seminar Thursday night.

Dr. Theodore Freidell, dean of the college of arts and sciences, and Dr. David Wheeler, dean of the graduate school, directed their comments at what could be termed an "identity crisis" at WTSU and the direction they would like to see the university take in the future.

Freidell, who said he believes WTSU is on the threshold of a new era, told the faculty members he would like to see the university burst out of its regional shell in terms of student recruitment and its viewpoint. He said the university needs to develop a "national view" with a national commitment and involvement.

Freidell outlined briefly the school's history and noted that it is traditional for former state teachers colleges to undergo certain problems when they become universities.

He said the administration of a university must be different from the administration of a teachers college, which traditionally uses a public school-type approach to administration.

With the complexities of a university, which is involved less and less with the educating of teachers, a new administrative model must be found which can accommodate a large amount of faculty participation on decision-making, he said.

While the administration experiences problems in changing its format or attitude, the faculty must also undergo a widening of vision to accommodate the widening scope of the university as opposed to a teachers college, he said.

The faculty must be prepared to take a greater portion of the burden of decision making, and the faculty must change its attitude to one which views the university as a good education, doing a good job of education.

"One thing intrigues me about WTSU," he said. "In a real sense, West Texas has been involved in a process of change and growth all of its history."

"We're sitting on the threshold of a brave tomorrow or a new tomorrow. We can become a 'real' university with all the problems and promises, or we can fumble the ball, fail to think big enough and optimistic enough and slip back in a more limited role."

Wheeler drew a verbal picture of two contrasting universities - a state college with pessimistic faculty, slow-moving inflexible administration and dull students and a state university with hard-working, enthusiastic faculty, flexible and inventive administration and interested and inspired students.

He said WTSU has the opportunity now to go one way or the other.

Canyon Man Honored By Society

John L. Matthews of Canyon was honored Thursday night with presentation of the first life membership ever granted by the West Texas State University Anthropological Society.

One of the first students to attend WTSU, Matthews also became first to discover many paleontological and archeological sites in the Texas Panhandle. It was for his many years of devoted aid to science in the area that he was presented with the life membership.

Among contributions listed on a certificate prepared by Rolla Shaller with art work by Mrs. Olive Vanduff Bugbee were:

In the 1930's, he guided Porter Montgomery and W.C. Holden of Texas Tech University to archeological and paleontological sites in Hartley County.

Had a party? Or giving one? Tell The Canyon News about it. Telephone 655-7121, or stop by the News office on the south side of the square.

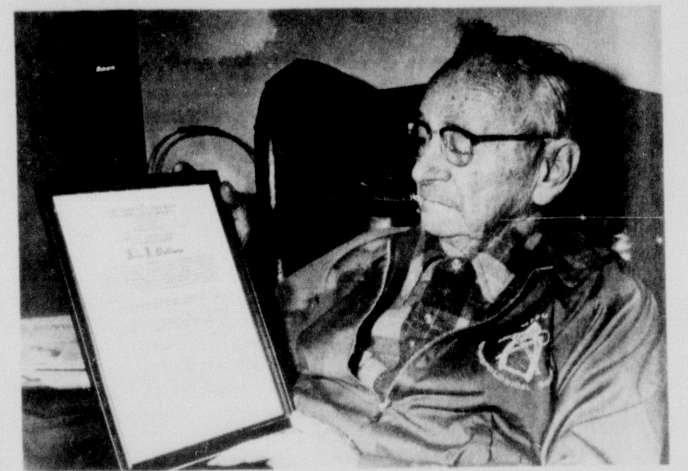

Buy, sell or trade with Canyon News classified ads.

In the 1940's he showed Glen Evans, of the Texas Memorial Museum in Austin, Grayson Meade of Texas Tech, and N.Z. Ward of the American Museum of Natural History, various fossil sites in Hartley County.

In the 1950's he guided Jack T. Hughes of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum to numerous archeological and paleontological sites in the Panhandle area and helped with scientific excavations at several sites.

In the 1960's he helped Earl Green of Texas Tech to excavate archeological remains around the Lake Meredith area. Within that same time, he discovered a huge fossil bison skull in Palo Duro Canyon and subsequently assisted in excavation and preservation undertaken by Gerald Schultz of WTSU. He also was active in the Panhandle Archeological Society and the Texas Archeological Society excavations along the Canadian River Valley, and found time and energy to offer assistance in excavations conducted by Billy R. Harrison, curator of anthropology at the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

As a result of Matthews' help, scientific reports on various aspects of Panhandle prehistory have been published and knowledge of the area greatly extended. Matthews received the certificate of life membership in brief ceremonies at a regular club meeting, where refreshments included a cake decorated with his name and outlines of archeological relics. Presentation was made by the club president, David T. Hughes. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews live at 810 15th Street. They have a son, Bruce, who is a Methodist minister in Cairo, Neb.

John Matthews, Canyon, was honored Thursday by the WTSU Anthropological Society. Matthews was one of the first students to attend West Texas and has been credited with several firsts in the field of archaeology.

Man Guilty Of Pot Sale

A South Amarillo man was found guilty of sale of marijuana late Thursday afternoon by an 8 woman, 4 man jury in 181st District Court in Canyon.

Richard A. Ford was initially sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by Judge Don Dean, who said he will consider a request for probation in the case.

Young Repubs Organize At WT

The Young Republicans of West Texas State University met Tuesday, Feb. 6, at the Pizza Hut for the purposes of electing officers and assigning posts in their organization. About 20 were present.

Chairman is Jim Collins, junior from Borger; vice-chairman is Tim Albright, sophomore of Amarillo; secretary, Miss Sharon White, junior of Amarillo; and treasurer, Gary Ferguson, junior from Roswell, N.M.

The state vice-chairman of the Young Republicans organization, Joe Jacques, a graduate student from Canyon, made several appointments at Tuesday's meeting. He designated Robert Goettsch, junior from Amarillo, as public relations chairman; Michael Cox, senior from Amarillo, as functions chairman; Gary Ferguson of Roswell, N.M., as finance chairman; and Roger Davis, senior of Amarillo, as parliamentarian.

The executive committee will consist of John Kessie, junior from Canadian; Claudia Stravado, senior from Amarillo; and Bill Sticksell, junior from Amarillo.

Delegates to the state convention of Young Republicans to be held in Ft. Worth, March 2-4, will be Joe Jacques, John Kessie, Jim Collins, and Sharon White. Jacques will be a candidate for state treasurer of Young Republicans at the convention.

The jury deliberated about 45 minutes after hearing a day of testimony in the trial.

Ford was charged with the sale of two lbs of marijuana to a Department of Public Safety undercover agent on June 4, 1972.

Ford is the first of a dozen persons arrested in a massive October drug raid in Potter and Randall counties to be tried on drug charges.

Tom Hefner, undercover agent for the DPS, and Pat Donley, chemist for the DPS, were the sole prosecution witnesses Thursday.

Hefner, who sports long hair and Pancho Villa-style moustache, testified that he purchased two plastic bags full of marijuana from Ford on June 4 for $13. apiece.

Donley testified that he had analyzed the material brought to him by Hefner and determined it to be marijuana.

Witnesses for the defense, represented by Amarillo attorney Steve Scott, included the defendant, Hefner, Capt. E.N. Smith of the Amarillo Police Department, Kerry Knorrp, assistant district attorney in Potter County, and Detective Gary Richards of the Amarillo Police Department.

Scott's defense was based on two allegations - that Ford had sold the marijuana not to Hefner but to another man, Terry Rowell, who was present the night of June 4, and that Ford was trapped into selling the marijuana by a man who was working as an informant for the Potter-Randall Metro Intelligence Squad.

Testimony from Capt. Smith indicated that a burglary charge was filed against Preston Duckworth, while Duckworth was working as an informant for Metro. The charge was later dropped.

Knorrp testified that the charge was dropped after the complaining witness requested that it be dropped against Duckworth.

Duckworth had been a friend of Ford.

Bufs To Meet UTA Thurs.

West Texas State's Buffaloes complete the second half of a four-game road venture this week by playing the Texas-Arlington Mavericks Thursday and the Memphis State Tigers Saturday.

The Buffs opened the road games last week by playing at Wichita State and at Drake.

The Buffs defeated Texas-Arlington 85-80 earlier this season at Amarillo. The game against Memphis, a Missouri Valley Conference contest, will be the first meeting of the two Valley opponents.

The Wichita State Shockers rolled past the Buffaloes 103-71 Thursday night and the loss was a costly one. Not only did the Buffaloes lose their sixth MVC game of the season, but they lost forward Scott Doores for an indefinite period with an ankle injury.

The 6-5 Perryton senior returned home to Canyon following the game as he was unable to play in Saturday's contest against the Drake Bulldogs.

Drake stopped West Texas 91-79 earlier in an Amarillo game which was regionally telecast.

Thursday's game was all Wichita State's. The Shockers took control during the first six minutes and led 15-8. From that point on, they controlled most of the contest.

Jerry Christian tallied a field goal and a free throw to cut the margin to 23-20 with 8:17 left in the first half, but the 6-6 senior picked up his fourth foul shortly thereafter and sat out the remainder of the first half. The Buffs' leading scorer with 16 points, Christian fouled out with 6:31 remaining in the game.

The Memphis State Tigers, ranked among the nation's top teams, are battling for the MVC championship along with Louisville. The Louisville club will be the Buffs' next home game. West Texas State faces the Cardinals Feb. 22 in Amarillo's civic center coliseum.

Pre-registration, New Testing This Summer At WT

Freshman and sophomore students who plan to attend West Texas State University next fall will find new opportunities for entrance to and upward mobility in the university.

Several new programs will be instituted at the university this summer, which should provide greater ease for freshmen and sophomores in entering the university and gaining class credit.

Dr. Eldon Lewis, dean of the school of business, said three separate days of orientation—which will amount to pre-registration, counseling and orientation—will be held on different days during the summer for beginning freshmen.

Students and parents will be invited to come to the campus on one of the three days to be introduced to WTSU and so the new students can enroll in the university without having to go through the regular fall registration procedures.

A typical day will include four morning sessions for students and their parents: Dean of Admissions Donald Cates will speak to freshmen and parents at the first session on enrollment procedures, university requirements and costs.

Clifford Baker will speak during the second session on financial aids, and scholarships available to freshmen at the university.

Staff members of the student life office at the university will speak on social activities on campus, student government, and campus organizations.

A general orientation to the university will be presented during the final morning session by Dr. Kenneth Waugh of the WTSU counseling service. He will point out the counseling services available to include testing and academic advisement.

The first session following a lunch break will be a short film strip on college life.

Then, Dr. Lewis said, students will be broken down into groups according to their majors and on a rotating basis will receive individual counseling, advice on courses to take in the fall, and basically will have the opportunity to enroll in the university for the fall term.

The university will later pull the students' class cards and mail a bill for the tuition and fees for the fall.

Dr. Lewis said freshmen who participate in the one-day orientation periods will not have to go through regular registration at the opening of the fall semester.

A brochure describing the orientation days is now being prepared, he said, and will be distributed to high school counselors and students who seek application for enrollment at the university.

If a freshman student cannot come to the orientation periods, he must go through the regular procedure for students at the beginning of the fall term.

Dr. Lewis said the university administration hopes the pre-registration concept can be extended to all students eventually.

Days set aside for the freshmen orientation are June 12, July 6 and July 31.

Also scheduled for implementation this summer is a testing program which will allow freshmen and sophomore students who pass the tests to gain advanced standing.

Dr. Theodore Freidell, dean of the college of arts and sciences, said WTSU has been designated a center for the College Level Examination Program (CLEP).

Basically three programs for placement through testing are offered starting this summer at WTSU.

Students may take either the CLEP tests or tests under the College Board Advanced Placement program. Credit is recorded on students' permanent records as "credit by examination."

Dr. Freidell said high school graduates with no previous college experience will be encouraged by the university to take CLEP examinations in certain freshman and sophomore courses during the summer before their registration. The students who successfully complete the tests will receive credit for the courses on their transcripts. No record will be made of the test scores if the student's performance is unsatisfactory.

Also to be offered beginning this summer is a new program for students enrolled at the university. Under the program they may earn credit for many courses at WTSU by successfully completing comprehensive examinations in the courses rather than enrolling in them in the traditional way.

Students who take the examinations will receive letter grade credit on their transcripts.

Dr. Freidell said a maximum of 30 semester hours of credit by examination may be applied toward a baccalaureate degree beginning this summer.

"We're trying to use a vehicle to assist bright high school student graduates to accelerate their baccalaureate degree programs," Freidell said.

He noted that the new testing programs should give older students who have experience picked up outside the classroom an opportunity to receive credit for that experience.

"This symbolizes what I hope is a new trend to become more flexible and more student-centered rather than regulation-centered," he said. "It is a trend away from arbitrary rules."

Other changes which are to go into effect this summer are changes in the maximum number of hours a student may carry in any semester. Beginning this summer there will be no maximum limit on class loads.

Chicano Week Termed Success

Chicano Awareness Week on the campus of West Texas State University ended Saturday night with a banquet and dance and leaders of the week-long program termed it a success.

"Our organization was happy to see that so many non-Chicano people came," said El Chicano Club president Jesse Toscano. He added that Anglo attendance at the functions was much better this year than last.

"It will be an annual thing," Toscano said following the end of the second Awareness Week.

On Thursday night, the Rev. Jacinto Alderete of Amarillo spoke to a crowd of about 100 persons on "The History of the Chicano in the Panhandle."

The Rev. Alderete began his talk by telling a story about a football player named "George" who, after three straight times of being flattened by bone-crushing tackles, "didn't want to carry the ball anymore."

According to the speaker, the Chicano has "had his head chopped off so many times" he often doesn't want to "carry the ball."

Rev. Alderete told the group that it is impossible to set the history of the Chicano apart from American history. He said the so-called American history begins at Jamestown and is prominent in history books. "Very little to the colonizing of the Southwest" is included in history books, he said.

The speaker cited Spanish settlements which were located in the Southwest long before the Europeans arrived at Jamestown and said that the Spanish "could have sent a committee to meet Capt. Smith."

The first Spanish pioneers came to the Southwest in 1534, said the Rev. Alderete.

"What about Coronado?" asked the Rev. Mr. Alderete. "We know little about him." The speaker went on to say that American historians had made heroes out of Lewis and Clark while listing Coronado as a failure.

He added that Coronado mapped out the entire southwest area from California to near the Mississippi River but, in American history, was best known for his failure to find the "Seven Cities of Gold."

According to the speaker, in the period from 1534 to 1825, Spanish surnamed people outnumbered non-Spanish by 30-6. "Yet we don't know that," he said, suggesting a visit to the WTSU museum to see what has happened to history.

The Rev. Alderete said that regardless of what is in the history books, "Our forefathers wore white hats too." He said they helped settle this country and "you shouldn't let history books tell you otherwise."

Of the claim that the United States was founded on religious principals, Rev. Alderete agreed, but he said those principals were not originated by the Pilgrims or other New England groups. "The Spanish came with priests in one hand a sword in the other," he said.

In calling for the Chicano to regain justice, educational rights, cultural awareness and responsibility, the speaker said it was "time for some of us to start carrying the ball."

He cited the future importance of the Chicano and predicted that within 20 years their number would grow to 625 million. English will be a minority language in the Western Hemisphere within 25 years, he added.

The Rev. Alderete said he favored the teaching of both English and Spanish and said that in his own home the shift from one to the other was done automatically.

The speaker talked of "pride" and with it "responsibility." He said that without responsibility, the Chicano of the future could be guilty of the same sins and prejudices they have been subjected to. "We have to set the example when it comes to the races," he added.

When asked following his talk if he thought inter-marriage between the Chicano and the other groups would cause the Chicano to lose his culture, Rev. Alderete replied, "It depends on the individual."

In closing his remarks, the speaker said, "Some have done us wrong, but must we feel sorry for ourselves forever? I ask all, especially the young people... when are you going to carry the ball? What kind of history are you going to make? If not now, when?"

Prior to the Rev. Alderete's talk, the group was entertained by the Wesley Community Children's Choir made up of Chicanos, Blacks, Anglos and Indians.

On Friday night, before a small audience at the WTSU activities center, Zeke Rodriguez, deputy director for programs and training for ACTION, Region VI, told of the various poverty fighting programs operated under that agency.

He described the work of VISTA, SCORE-AID, University Year In Action, the Peace Corps, the Retired Senior Volunteer Program, and the Foster Grandparents Program.

Rodriguez described all but one of those programs as a supplier of manpower rather than cash outlays, and told how communities could benefit from them and how young persons could volunteer to help.

He cited a major change in the VISTA program, and said workers are now being paid $7,200 a year for their services.

The speaker noted the new programs designed to keep older persons busy and have them perform useful services at the same time. He said the programs involving retired persons would continue to grow in Texas and across the country.

In defending the government programs operating under ACTION, Rodriguez named several cities and communities where sponsored programs are under way and working well. He said the programs benefitted not only the communities and poverty stricken people, but also the volunteers. He cited VISTA as being ideal for college graduates who "have never done anything."

Rodriguez called for volunteers from the Chicano ranks by saying that few were available to fill a great demand for Spanish speaking workers.

"We can't deal with those who think only about themselves," he said of needing volunteers whose main interests are to help those in need.

A play scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday in the fine arts building was cancelled due to a conflict of time and date, a spokesman said.

The Awareness Week ended Saturday night with a banquet and dance held in the activities center ballroom with Gilbert Chavez acting as keynote speaker at the banquet.

Chavez is director of the Office for Spanish Speaking American Affairs in Washington.

Poff Is Named To Head State Education Group

State Rep. Bryan Poff has been named to head the seven-member standing subcommittee on higher education of the Texas House.

Poff's appointment was announced Friday.

The committee, which handles all legislation concerning all state-supported junior colleges, senior colleges and universities, is a permanent subcommittee of the committee on education, chaired by Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale.

Kubiak, in making his announcement, called Poff "one of the outstanding young men in the legislature, who is deeply concerned with providing Texas with quality education."

Poff, who is in his second term in the Legislature, said "education is one of my prime concerns and I am particularly pleased with this opportunity to serve the state—especially West Texas State University and Amarillo College.

"I want us to carefully plan the growth of higher education by maintaining and upgrading our existing facilities. The money we spend, some $675 million annually, must go to provide the citizens of Texas with the most modern and convenient education possible."
